English Tennis Championship Will Start on June 23

Yesterday we stated that the All England Club had applied for sanction to hold the English lawn tennis championships at Wimbledon next summer. Last night we got word that the application had been granted, and that the tournament would be started on Monday, June 23. This early date would make it possible for some of our leading players to take part in the English event and then come on with the British top notchers for the American championships late in August. There is reason to believe that Braden, track captain, who has resome of our best players will be seen in action at Wimbledon, but we are not optimistic over the chances of the best of the Britens coming to this as Captain of artillery.

Now that the Lawn Tennis Association of England has decided to revive candidates for the university and freshits championships, it is tackling the question of forcing the title holders to nay through.
